BRITISH ARISTOCRATS ASK HEAVY TAXES

Growing Demand to Have Rich Help Bear More Burden of National Maintenance.

LONDON, March 14.-There is a vigrous, growing demand throughout ad for higher, much higher, taxes; not so much to raise more money for the war as to compel people to conomize. At any rate, this is the way the movement's backers express it. who can afford to do so has no right to consume the country's sustenance extravagantly at such a time. It is charged that many of the working classes, whose wages have been greatly inflated by the war, insist on doing it. The "higher taxes" advocates want the government to compel labor to Incidentally, it is pointed out that increased taxation will enable England to meet more of its war bills as it goes along, instead of saddling them onto posterity. A heavy tariff on the necessaries of life is the thing most generally urged. It has been noticed that, rather oddly, this program's supporters are mostly of the aristocratic. talistic, conservative class. From fact the following conclusion has a drawn and freely expressed by many Englishmen:

many Englishmen:
Workingmen are making so much money at present that their standard of living is much higher than before the war. After the war there will be a return to old conditions. This will result in bitter discontent, and the workers will object to a return to the old standard. If the capitalists can make the workingman's taxes so heavy flow that his higher pay will do him no good, he will not find fault with a subsequent slump, correspondingly, to lower wages and lower prices.

As for the other argument, these same radicals reason that all the war bills radicals reason that all the war the workers are forced to pay for will be, by just that much, a li will be, by just that much, a lighter burden on the capitalists in the future. or not, it is much heard in England at present. Whether this is a socialistic argument

Californian Is Technical Aspirant for President in Minnesota Primary.

ST. PAUL, March 14.-The Progress ive party technically had a candidate for President of the United States in the field at the Minnesota Presidential preference primary today, but his name didn't get on the ballot. The man was Hiram Johnson, governor of California, whose name was filed by Minnesota Progressives.

Minnesota law provides for seven-teen delegates to the national Progressive convention. Just that number filed for the places, obviating a contest There was only only Progressive Presi-The argument is that even a man dential candidate. Democratic—For President, Woodrow Wilson.
Republican—Senator Albert Cummins, Iowa; Henry D. Eastbrook, New York; William Grant Webster, Chicago.
Prohibitionist—For President, William Sulzer, New York; Eugene Foss, Massachusetts. For Vice President, Frederick T. Wheeler, California; Ben B. Lindsey, Denver; Findley T. Hendrickson, Maryland.

Minnesota's first Presidential prefer Minnesota's first Presidential preference primary went through today only after a fight in the supreme court. Under the law, delegates to national conventions must pledge their support to some officially recorded aspirant for the Presidential nomination. Many prominently mentioned as Presidential timber refused to permit their names to be filed on the Minnesota ballot. This eliminated any delegates who wanted to go to the national conventions for them. It was upon this point in the law that the two supreme court attacks were made.

Grand Rapids Hotel Man Wanders Until Sees Name in Paper.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., March 14.-

F. Taylor Peck, a local hotel proprietor, returned home after an absence of more than a week, during which time he lost and regained his reason.

Mr. Peck's mental poise was restored in New York while seated in a railway station. He noticed an advertisement reading "Arpi, come home," inserted by relatives. The name "Arpi," one of endearment which had been given him by his wife, served to dispel his aberration.

able age they sought homes of their own. In time Mrs. Bunce found herself a grandmother many times over. In short, when she appeared in the divorce court the other day, admitting to sixty-nine years, but appearing no more than forty, she said there were thirty-five grandchildren.

She sought a decree from her second husband, Wesley Bunce, whom she married in 1919, after a widowhood of eight years. It was not a happy union, although it would have been if Mr. Bunce had not objected to her going to see her children and grandchildren and having them call at her home.

There was another objection which she voiced. Mr. Bunce did not feel he could support her in the way she had been accustomed to live. She complained of his penuriousness. Mr. Bunce did not oppese the suit. When he left her in 1913 he made a property settlement, it was stated by Attorney H. M. Haskell. Judge Wood granted the decree.

STRATFORD-ON-AVON, March 1
(By mail),—If William Shakespeare lived today he would not spend long night hours penning literature for future generations in his home on Stratford's main thoroughfare.

Lights are prohibited in Stratford. The mayor's council has decided that until the war is over Stratforders shall go to bed with the chickens or spend their evenings in darkness. The recent Zeppelin raid on the Midlands is responsible for the order.

In peace time tourists from all parts of the world came, here to see where alleged political corruption in the elec-tions of 1911 and 1915.

Republican Chairman C. D. Coughlin and Democratic Chairman W. S. Mc-Lean presented their account of the last election for inspection, but nothing of startling nature was revealed. "Butch" McDevitt, one-day millionaire, is mys-tericusly missing from town. He is wanted to tell about the $25,000 he is alleged to have received for getting of the Democratic deket in 1911, after he had been nominated for county treas-urer.

ALLEN-In loving memory of my heloved wife, CARRIE ESTRILLE ALLEN, who departed this life one year ago, March 14, 1915. When I sit alone in the twilight, and the past I am living o'er.

I can see the form of my darling gilde in at the open door;
With a genite and noiseless footstep comes my sainted wife divine.

Takes the vacant chair beside me, lays her dear sweet hand in mine

As she sits and gazes at me with her deep and tender eyes,
Like the stars so deep and saint-like, locking downward from the skies.

My arms stretch out to embrace her, to reach her they vainly try;
My heart ultra and bleeding with anguish, sadly questions, why?

Why is it? When people are happy, and their lives with true love is bleet.
They work and live for each other and their home is a haven of rest,
That the cruel hand of fate should enter sind in a second their pleasure destroy, and leave hearts groaning with anguish that once were o'erflowing with joy.

Now the day is and and long dear. Tears oft fill my eyes;
I miss your sweet kiss of welcome, I miss your fond good-byes.
